Printer with the Treasurer of the United States should be covered into the Treasury to the credit of the appropriations from which it was drawn. (2) In our investigation of the accounts we found no evidence of fraud. There are, however, some serious irregularities chargeable, in most cases, to bad administration. There were a number of vouchers showing payments to the audit system for materials and supplies furnished during the time this corporation was engaged in installing a system of cost keeping and accounting in this office. When it is considered how closely the officers and employees of this corporation were related to the management of this office, the awarding of contracts to said corporation for supplies would seem to be not only bad administration, but suggests a violation of the spirit and intent, if not the letter, of the law as contained in section 34...
